

Health Insurance Policy

1. Purpose and Coverage

This Health Insurance Policy provides general guidance regarding employer-sponsored health insurance benefits. Eligibility, coverage limits, exclusions, waiting periods, dependents, network providers, and claim procedures are governed by the applicable insurance plan documents and insurer terms. This document is intended as an internal summary and does not replace the official insurance contract.

2. Employee and Dependent Eligibility

Eligible employees may enroll in the health insurance plan according to the enrollment period and rules established by the organization and insurer. Where dependent coverage is available, employees must provide accurate information and supporting documents within the required timelines. Changes such as marriage, birth, adoption, or loss of other coverage should be reported through the designated benefits process.

3. Hospitalization and Cashless Treatment

Where the insurance plan provides cashless treatment, employees should use an eligible network hospital and follow the insurer's pre-authorization process. Employees may be required to provide identification, insurance information, medical records, and other documents. Cashless approval is determined by the insurer or its authorized administrator and is subject to the plan's terms and limits.

4. Reimbursement Claims

For eligible expenses paid by the employee, reimbursement claims should be submitted within the applicable claim period with complete supporting documentation. Documents may include bills, receipts, discharge summaries, prescriptions, investigation reports, and claim forms. Incomplete submissions may result in delays or rejection under the insurer's procedures.

5. Exclusions and Limitations

Insurance benefits are subject to exclusions, sub-limits, deductibles, waiting periods, and other restrictions specified in the official plan. Employees should verify coverage before planned treatment whenever possible. The company does not guarantee payment for a medical expense when the insurer determines that the expense is outside the coverage terms.

6. Policy Support

Employees who need assistance with enrollment, claims, network providers, or benefit clarification should contact the designated HR or insurance support channel. The organization may change the insurer, plan design, coverage terms, or administration process from time to time, subject to applicable requirements and communication procedures.
